Advancement

Scouts earn advancement through a series of experiential activities, skills and merit badges. There are over 100 merit badges from which to choose, allowing each boy to find those in which they already have an interest as well as those about which they would like to learn more. Merit badges are defined as "required" which must be earned by every Scout and "nonrequired" that give each Scout the opportunity to individualize their advancement.

Just contact us and you can stop in and sample one of our meetings. I guarantee, our boys will make your son feel right at home and help him join in the fun.

But my son is involved with sports, the school play, piano lessons, ...

It doesn't have to be "either / or". Our Scouts participate in many other activities, along with Boy Scouts – ask us about it.

For over a century, Boy Scouts has helped build the future leaders of this country by combining educational activities and lifelong values with fun. The Boy Scouts of America believes — and, through a century of experience, knows — that helping youth is a key to building a more conscientious, responsible, and productive society.
